This captivating novel takes you on a thrilling journey back to the tragic night of April 14, 1912, when the RMS Titanic, the largest and most luxurious passenger ship ever built, sank after hitting an iceberg.

Through the eyes of our protagonist, Sarah Jones, a brilliant young historian with a passion for Titanic lore, we witness the grandeur and opulence of the ship, the excitement and anticipation of its passengers, and the tragic events that unfolded in the dead of night.

Sarah, driven by an unquenchable curiosity and a desire to experience the Titanic firsthand, has spent years studying the ship's history. When she discovers a mysterious artifact that grants her the ability to time travel, she seizes the opportunity to step back into the past and witness the Titanic's fateful voyage.

As Sarah arrives on the bustling decks of the Titanic, she is immediately captivated by the ship's immense size and the diverse group of passengers, each with their own dreams, hopes, and secrets. She befriends a charming young couple, John and Mary, who are on their honeymoon, and a wise old gentleman, Professor James, who shares his knowledge of the ship's history.

As the hours pass, Sarah immerses herself in the ship's vibrant atmosphere, attending lavish parties, exploring the ship's hidden nooks and crannies, and learning about the complex lives of the passengers and crew. However, as midnight approaches, a sense of unease washes over her as she realizes the impending danger that awaits.

With the iceberg looming on the horizon, Sarah faces a heart-wrenching decision. Should she use her knowledge of history to warn the crew and save countless lives? Or should she remain a silent observer, respecting the integrity of the past?

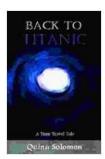

Torn between her responsibility and her desire to experience the full weight of history, Sarah embarks on a perilous mission to alert the ship's officers. But time is running out, and the icy grip of the iceberg draws ever closer.
