From a Humble Beginning to a New York City Institution

The Zabar family story is a uniquely American tale of hard work, perseverance, and a deep love of food. It all began in 1934, when Louis Zabar, a Ukrainian immigrant, opened a small grocery store on the Upper West Side of Manhattan. With his wife, Lillian, he sold a modest selection of meats, cheeses, and produce.

Louis and Lillian's son, Stanley, joined the family business in 1953. Under his leadership, Zabar's began to expand its offerings, adding a full line of gourmet products, including imported cheeses, exotic fruits, and fine wines. Stanley also introduced a number of innovative services, such as home delivery and catering.

Today, Zabar's is a New York City institution, known for its unparalleled selection of high-quality foods. The store is a favorite destination for both locals and tourists alike, and its products have been featured in countless cookbooks and magazines.

The Zabars: A Family of Food Lovers

The Zabar family has always been passionate about food. Louis and Lillian were both skilled cooks, and they passed on their love of cooking to their children. Stanley and his siblings grew up experimenting with new recipes and sharing their favorite dishes with friends and family.

Stanley's wife, Carol, is also a talented cook. Together, they have created a number of signature dishes that have become Zabar's classics. These include their famous smoked salmon, whitefish salad, and chocolate babka.

The Zabar family's love of food is evident in everything they do. They are always searching for new and exciting ingredients, and they are constantly experimenting with new recipes. Their passion for food is contagious, and it has inspired countless others to explore the world of culinary arts.
